

Confidential Billing Process for School-Based Health Centers

In Washington state, minor consent and confidentiality laws allow youth to receive certain services without involving a parent or guardian. School-Based Health Centers (SBHCs) follow the same state and federal confidentiality requirements as any other health care provider. Health information will not be shared without consent, except in very limited situations required by law. This document explains how confidentiality is maintained throughout the care and billing process, potential privacy risks, and how to report an issue. This process is focused on managed care organizations (MCO) and specific to that company's details.

| What is being done to address potential risks to maintaining your confidentiality at Molina | Molina is committed to maintaining confidentiality. We are taking additional measures to address these potential risks, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Adding training in confidentiality and billing to the required annual provider training. • Molina will not conduct any follow-up or Quality Assurance (QA) calls for members under the age of 18. • Providing this information regarding confidentiality and any potential risks and mitigation efforts. • Working with the Washington School-Based Health Alliance (WA SBHA) to continuously understand and address any areas of concern expressed by SBHCs to find ways to mitigate any potential risks to your confidentiality. |

What to do if confidentiality is breached

If you experience any issues with confidential services email Molina and copy the HCA at hcamcprograms@hca.wa.gov with the following information:

- Name of patient
- Date of Birth of patient
- P1 ID
- Patient Phone Number
- Provider Name & Contact Information
- Brief description of the request/issue

HCA will identify the issues within confidential billing processes to address them with the MCO. We want providers to feel confident in billing, and this process will help to quickly identify and mitigate issues as they arise.

Background

About School-Based Health Centers

A School-Based Health Center (SBHC) is a health clinic located in or next to a school. Students can get medical care, mental health services, and sometimes other support all in one place.

SBHCs are different from school health staff, like the school nurse or a school-employed counselor. They are operated by a healthcare sponsor and follow the same healthcare laws and standards as community health clinics.

SBHCs are often placed in schools where students may have barriers to getting healthcare elsewhere, such as cost, distance, or lack of transportation.

Services at SBHCs are available to all students at the school. In some cases, SBHCs may also serve students from other schools in the district, as well as families, staff, or community members.

About Managed Care Organizations

Managed Care Organizations (MCOs) are health plans that provide healthcare coverage for physical health, mental health, and substance use treatment within one system. In Washington, most students who have Apple Health Medicaid get their care through an MCO.

The state has five MCOs. When someone becomes eligible for Apple Health, they choose or are assigned to one of these plans.
