Updated: 04/21/2020

Who I Am In My Community

Relationship-Building Workbook

one south pinckney street suite 320 madison. wisconsin 53703 v. 608.255.6441 f. 608.255.0898 web: tmgwisconsin.com

ntroduction	2
ection 1: My Personal Story	4
ection 2: Working for Me	10
ection 3: Telling You what I Need	13
ection 4: What I Need Each Day	14
ection 5: How I Pay for My Supports	17
ection 6: What You Should Know About My Health	18
ection 7: In Case of An Emergency	22
Ongoing Learning	23

Introduction

"There are no prescriptive solutions, no grand designs for grand problems. Life's solutions lie in the minute particulars involving more and more individual people daring to create their own life and art, daring to listen to the voice within their deepest, original nature, and deeper still, the voice within the earth." - Stephen Nachmanovitch

Purpose

This workbook was created following education and collaboration activities with Wisconsin self-advocates, the Family Governed Support Group of Southeast Waukesha County, DSAW Microboard, David Wetherow, Janet Klees and the Deahaoko Support Network, BPDD, and LinkEd.

The workbook can support people interested in strengthening their community life by building quality, reliable relationships. This is done by realizing that everyone, including people with disabilities, has valuable social roles in their community. People's roles aren't defined by their disability; they are defined by what they like, what they're good at, and what kind of person they are. If we meet people that have the same kinds of roles, it is easier to feel comfortable around them.

How to Use This Workbook

This workbook should be completed by the person in IRIS and their family and friends. The purpose of this workbook is to guide you as you write down information that will help you build quality relationships.

This workbook is designed to be placed in a three-ring binder. You will need paper with holes punches along the side, a three-ring binder, and a way to write down your responses. You should store the completed workbook somewhere that is easy to get to.

You should review the workbook the first time you meet with your direct care workers, personal care workers, support brokers, and other people involved in your life. Showing them your answers to the questions on the worksheets will help you build reliable relationships with them. Be sure to look over the workbook occasionally to see if any information needs to be updated.

Beliefs

To create a relationship, people need to agree on a set of beliefs between them. When everyone agrees on something, it builds trust and stability to the group of people in the relationship. If you believe one thing, it is difficult to believe the opposite.

If you believe in the benefits of communities, you cannot believe that there are no opportunities or support available. If you value quality relationships, you cannot support activities that work against relationships.

Before you start this workbook, it would be a good idea to sit down with people that are important to you and talk about your idea of a good relationship.

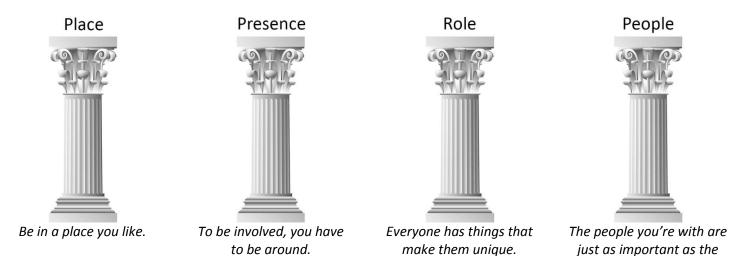

Supporting Relationship

People that help and support you should feel privileged to be a part of your life. Helping someone grow and build relationships is satisfying and exciting. People that support you have a special role in the relationships you build with others.

How does someone supporting you do their best work? When people help you build relationships, they watch those relationships grow over time, and they get to see you find the social roles that fit you best. Building relationships takes time, so a good supporter will be dedicated to helping you for a long time. A good supporter also respects you and what you say. They don't try to be the center of attention, but they should always be available when you need to talk about problems or questions.

The Four Pillars

We can think of the relationship building as having four pillars. If one of the pillars is out of place, then quality relationships will be harder to build.

It is easier to build relationships if you start small. Choose small groups or relationships with single people at first. Businesses and activities run by families and the community are a good place to start. Always choose activities based on your interests and personality, not on your disability. Take one step at a time.

Think of these questions when you fill out the workbook:

- How do I see myself?
- What do I see myself doing?
- Who do I see myself making relationships with?

activity you're doing.

1 My Personal Story

People can learn a lot about you when you talk about the things you like. If you are unsure how to answer some of the questions on this worksheet, you can talk about it with someone you trust. You can also make copies of this worksheet for other people.

Things I Want You to Know about Me
Things you should know:
The people I spend the most time with are:
The things that make me smile are:
The things that make me sad are:
I would miss these things if they weren't around:
I am most happy when:
Some things that bug me are:
I worry about:

One of my goals is:

If I could learn one new hobby, it would be:

One thing I would not change about myself is:

Something I want you to remember about me is:

What I Like

Your favorite things, people, and places express a lot about you. Use this worksheet to make a list of all your favorite and least favorite things. Use clear plastic page folders to include photos or other items that will help communicate your favorite things to a new person in your life.

My Favorite Things
Book	Song
TV Show	Sport
Movie	Restaurant
Color	Food
Animal	Holiday
Day of the Week	Actor or Actress
Game	Place to Visit

Things I Like
Things I like in my home
Things I like in my community
Things I like when I am having fun
Things I like when people are speaking to me
Things I like to wear

Things I Don't Like
Things I don't like in my home
Things I don't like that other people do
Things I don't like when I am trying to have fun
Things I don't like when we are speaking
Things I don't like to wear

What I Am Good At

All of us have things we are good at and things we need help doing. Let's write down your strengths and the things you might ask for help doing. You can ask people you like what they think your strengths are.

	What Am	I Good At?
In my home?		In my yard and neighborhood?
At work?		When I am with my friends?
In my town?		When I visit my doctor?

What I Need Help With

While we all want to be as self-dependent as possible, there are times when things go more smoothly with help. This worksheet can be used to list information for people that help you do things. It would be good to write tips for people, as well as times, addresses, and phone numbers if needed.

What do I ne	ed help with
At home?	Outside?
At work?	When I am with my friends?
In my community?	When I visit my doctor?

2 Working for Me

People who will be providing you support need to know what you expect them to do. You should regularly talk with people that work for you so they know what supports you need. You can write your expectations on this worksheet and share it with them.

Things I need you to do:

These are things that your employee will be doing for you when they work.

How I expect you to act:

These are certain things that you expect from your workers, such as being on time or being polite.

Skills I would like you to have:

These are things that your employee needs to know how to do.

Things we usually do during the day:

Things we usually do at night:

Things we don't need to do together:

Three words that describe me as a supervisor are:

1	2	3
Three words that describe our team:	2	3
Three ways I want you to think of you	r job:
1	2	3

Work Schedule

You should copy this worksheet for each person who works for you. After you hire a worker, write their work schedule in this chart. You should keep a copy in this guide and they should take a copy with them.

Name of Employee:

These are the times I expect you to be able to work for me.

	Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
Start
End
At My Home
At My Work
In My Community

Notes about these shifts:

Team Members

You can use this worksheet to let your team members know how to contact each other. You will need to update it each time a new person is hired. The list should include everyone that provides supports and would be able to help out when someone is unable to work.

If one of your employees needs to miss time, they need to find someone on the team to work in their place and let you know.

Name	Phone Number	Usual Support Times	Other Contact Info

3 Telling You what I Need

We all communicate in different ways. Some of us use words, some use a device, and some may have someone that translates. Many of us act a certain way and have facial expressions that help others know what we are feeling or thinking. You can ask people who know you well to help you fill out this sheet. This is also a great place to include images or videos that could help people get to know you.

How I Tell You What I Need
When I'm happy, I show it by
When I am upset, I show it by
Some words and phrases I don't like are
When you are talking to me, you should
Some tools that help me communicate are

4 What I Need Each Day

We all have different things we like to do each day, which means we each have different schedules. These worksheets can help you write down things you do throughout the day that you may need help with. Feel free to make copies of this page for different days of the week.

Things I Do During The Day	Do I Need Help With This?	If Yes, What Kind Of Help?
Meals	🗌 Yes 🗌 No
Cleaning	🗌 Yes 🗌 No
Paying Bills	🗌 Yes 🗌 No
Appointments	🗌 Yes 🗌 No
Seeing Friends	🗌 Yes 🗌 No
Other(Describe)	🗌 Yes 🗌 No

Weekday Schedule

This worksheet will help you write down what you do during the weekdays (Monday through Friday). If you have a schedule that changes depending on the weekday, you can make copies of this page.

Weekend Day	What I do	Who helps me	Tips for helping me
Morning
During the Day
Evening and Night

In this chart, write what you do in your free time on weekdays.

Activity	Where it happens	How you can help me

Weekend Schedule

This worksheet is like the last page, but for weekends (Saturday and Sunday). If you have a schedule that changes depending on the day of the weekend, you can make copies of this page.

Weekend Day	What I do	Who helps me	Tips for helping me
Morning
During the Day
Evening and Night

In this chart, write what you do in your free time on weekends.

Activity	Where it happens	How you can help me

5 How I Pay for My Supports

Section 5 focuses on how you pay for the supports you receive. This information is a bit more personal, but you are not required to fill it out.

This information would be useful to people that help you so they know the rules that go along with some sources of funding. If the way you pay people has specific rules to follow, you do not want people to have different expectations than what is allowed.

If you do not want to share your financial information, please feel free to skip Section 5.

Different kinds of funding each have their own set of rules. If people providing you support know a little bit about where your funds are coming from, they will know what rules they have to follow. If you would prefer that people not have this information, you can remove this portion of this guide.

Funding Source	What I use it for Public Long-Term Care Program This is money that is budgeted on your self- directed plan. It is part of a federal community supports waiver through Medicaid. This is a flexible funding source, but there are rules about when this money can be used and what it can be used for.
Medicaid Card Your Medicaid Card is part of your health insurance from Medicaid. It is accessed using a Forward Health card. Like many other health insurance programs, there are rules about things it can pay for.
Private Money You can use personal money to pay for whatever you want, such as bills or food. This is money you may get from your work or other sources.
Natural Supports These are things your friends and family do for you without being paid.

6 What You Should Know About My Health

Section 6 is all about your medical information. Remember, you do not have to share things that make you uncomfortable. These pages can be removed from the binder and kept in a different location.

The information on the next worksheets may feel a bit more private, and it's okay if you don't want to share all of it with your network of friends and the people who support you. However, you should think about why certain information would be important for people to know. For example, if someone was making dinner, it is important to let them know if you have a food allergy for safety reasons.

Think about who the people are and if you can trust them to keep your information private. You should also think about when would be the best time to comfortably share this information.

People can support you better if they know a bit about your health and disability. You should only share the information that is necessary for them to help you lead a healthy, safe, and meaningful life in your community.

This is my disability or diagnosis:

Medications

It is a good idea to share information about your medications with people who support you, since medications have a direct impact on your health and safety. This guide has two different ways to list information about your medications. You can fill out whichever works best for you. The first option is the questions below, and the second option is the chart on page 17.

Medications
Current medications, vitamins, and supplements
Medications that SHOULD NOT be taken
Special requirements when increasing or decreasing medications
Which medication should be taken with food or drink
What assistance I need when taking medication
Who orders the medication and how is it nicked up or delivered
Who orders the medication and how is it picked up or delivered
Where are the medications kept
where are the medications kept
Which medications are monitored and by who

You can use the chart on the next page to list information about your medications instead of answering the above questions.

questions. Medication	Strength	How often?	Notes about this Medication

Medical Contacts

	Name	Address	Phone Number	Normal Appointment Times
Family Doctor	Naille	Address		Normal Appointment Times
Specialists (psychiatrists, cardiologists, etc.)
Dentist
Optometrist
Therapists
Walk-in Clinic
Pharmacy

7 In Case of An Emergency

You can write down the names of people that should be contacted if there is an emergency.

Name	Phone Number	Relationship to You

What do people need to know about you in a medical emergency?

Ongoing Learning

Here are some links to resources for information about community building, relationships, and social roles:

- Deohaeko Support Network (www.deohaeko.com) This is a group of families who came together nearly 20 years ago to plan good lives for young people with developmental disabilities. www.deohaeko.com
- ReachOut (http://au.reachout.com) This site is full of advice on taking control of challenges most people face growing up.
- Community Living Toolkit (http://www.tmg-wis.com/iris/docs/misc/cl_tool.pdf) This toolkit was made by the TMG IRIS Consultant Agency to help people get involved with their communities.
- The Center on Human Policy (CHP) (http://thechp.syr.edu/about-the-center-on-human-policy/) This is a Syracuse University based policy, research, and advocacy organization involved in ensuring the rights of people with disabilities. The Center has been involved in the study and promotion of open settings (inclusive community opportunities) for people with disabilities.
- The Asset-Based Community Development Institute (ABCD) (http://www.abcdinstitute.org/) This institute focuses on local assets as the primary building blocks of sustainable community development.

It is important to keep learning about yourself and sharing those things with others. Continue learning about your community, and find times to share the things you learn with those around you.

Hopefully, this workbook will help you build relationships with new people in your life. Be sure to come back and update your answers as needed.

Enjoy and best wishes on your journey!

Funding for this project provided by:

WISCONSIN BOARD FOR PEOPLE WITH DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES